Progress report Weeks 17-25

The New floor in the Pavilion workshop is completed

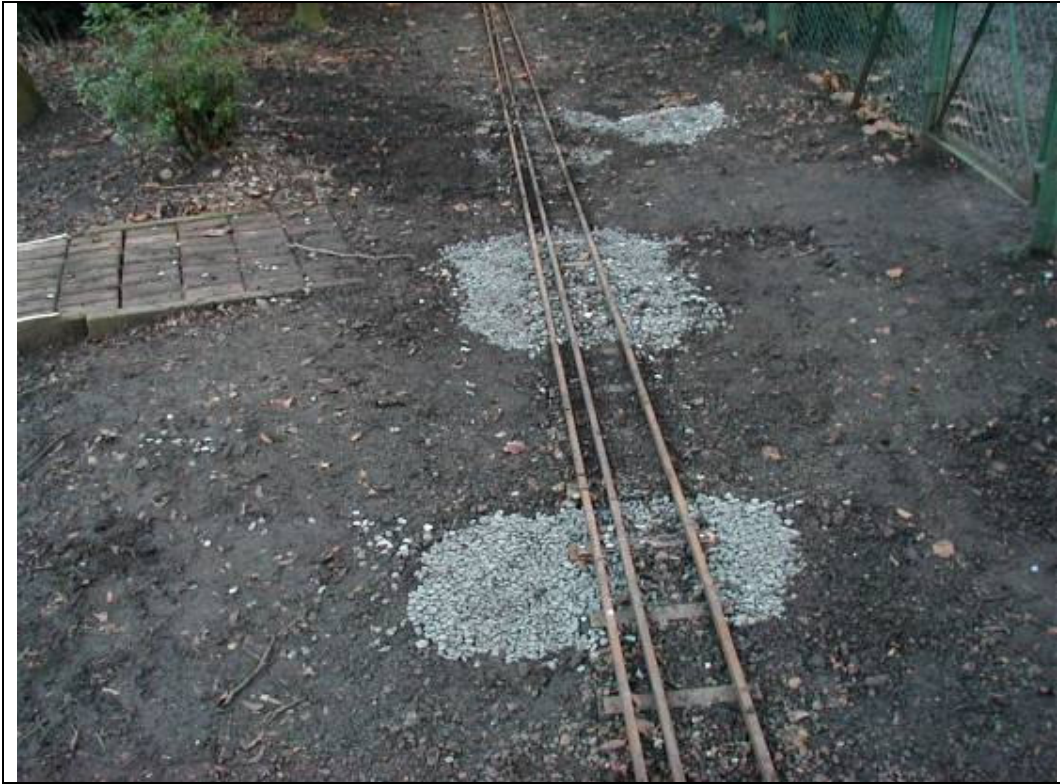

A broken Hydraulic lift is looked at for repair.
( You can almost hear the cogs whirring as Paul and rob try to work out the problem)

With a bit of tinkering and some home repairs from Paul the lift is now operational

The Turn table and steaming bays got a lick of paint

New sleeps are put into the ground track

An old Jig boring machine fails to spark any interest so is consigned to the scrap heap

John removes as many parts possible to make the old jig borer lighter to move

The final parts of the raised track are slotted into place bringing this mammoth task to an end

The flower beds are dug over by the Wednesday gang

Ray starts the paintwork on No3 body work

Some repairs being made to the exhaust of No4

A few sleepers and a coat of paint on the raised track
